EXTENSION OF SEA COAST TO HEART OF THE CON- TINENT

BY COMPLETING GREAT LAKES- ST. LAWRENCE DEEP WATERWAY

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 5.—(UP)—Unlimited prosperity for the United States and Canada was pictured today at the Northwest Tidewater conference.

Extension of the sea coast to the heart of the continent by completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway project would place America in an economic position that could not be challenged, speakers declared.

"Thirty-three miles of restricted water stands between the vast producing territory in the heart of our continent and the gateway to prosperity," Governor Theodore Christianson told the conference. "The problem already is solved. All it needs is an aroused interest on the part of the people to make it a reality."

The conference was called by Gov. Theodore Christianson to arouse that interest. Delegations from virtually all mid-west states and provinces of Canada were here for this noon-day luncheon. Charles P. Craig, executive director of the Tidewater Congress, and others addressed the luncheon. Other sessions will be held tonight and tomorrow.

"Transportation costs of getting northwest products to markets can be cut in half by completion of the project," the governor declared. "The saying would rebound to the producers."

"Prosperity in the great producing area of the mid-continent means prosperity for all the continent. This project is just as important to national efficiency and economy as was the completion of the Panama Canal," he said.

"The west supported the Panama Canal project because it was of economic benefit to the nation as a whole," said Director Craig. "The wisdom of that project is manifest. But it has worked a distinct disadvantage on the mid-west."

"Our Pacific west coast is nearer to New York than Cleveland, speaking in terms of transportation costs," Craig said. "Mills at Seattle lay their products down at New York 16 cents a hundred pounds cheaper than the same products can be laid down at New York from Minneapolis."

"It costs 68 cents to get a product of Eau Claire's canning industry to New York, while canners at San Francisco get their product to New York for 35 cents."

"This is a competitive condition which is holding back development of our mid-continent. If it is not corrected our greatest producing areas must retrogress."

"Corn from Argentine gets to New York for 16 cents and it costs 26 cents to get it there from Iowa."

"Agriculture, horticulture and manufacturing interests of the mid-west are solidly behind the project. Our government is with us. Some selfish interests in the east are offering the only opposition."

"Arrested development means business stagnation for every section of the country. The entire country will prosper with completion of the waterway."

Rapids of the St. Lawrence river would be drowned out by construction of a series of dams. The cost would be apportioned by the United States and Canada.

MOVE TO STAMP OUT COMMUNISM, RADICAL TEACHINGS

St. Paul, Jan. 5.—(UP)—A concerted move in Minnesota to stamp out communism and radical teachings was anticipated today.

Post No. 8, American Legion, started the drive by unanimously adopting resolutions last night asking Governor Christianson to use his office to fight communism by every legal means.

The resolution asked the governor to enlist every peace officer in the state in the movement to bring such violators of the law to trial. Disloyal acts of citizens should be punished, and aliens should be promptly deported, the resolution urged.

Newspapers and periodicals were asked to combat the "menace" and churches and schools were urged to enter into the campaign.

CRITICISE THE RAILWAY ORDERS AT THE INQUEST

COLLISION NEAR RENVILLE PROBED BY THE CORO- NER'S JURY

RAIL ORDERS UNDER BAN GIV- ING CREWS ONE OR MORE OPTIONS

Renville, Minn., Jan. 5.—(UP)—Railroad orders which give crews one or more options were criticised at a coroner's hearing of the circumstances of the collision here November 15 in which four lost their lives. Grand jury investigation of the wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road may follow the verdict of the coroner's jury. After hearing members of the crew the coroner's jury held the wreck was due to "misjudgement and negligence of the man in charge of train crew No. 264."

This was the crew of the freight whose engineer had his choice waiting for the Columbian, crack Pacific coast flyer, at Sacred Heart side-track, or trying to make O'Connors siding near Renville, clearing the main line by 1:25 a. m. This order was given at Minnesota Falls.

Engineer Irwin Bucklin, in charge of the double-header freight had just pulled his train to a stop at O'Connors siding, ready to switch off the main line, when the Columbian crashed into the freight. Testimony showed it was about 1:34 a. m.

Engineer Bucklin, Minneapolis, is still in a Montevideo hospital with his injuries. The coroner's inquiry was postponed four times because of his inability to testify.

GOVERNMENT WINS SWEEPING VICTORY OVER E. L. DOHENY

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 5.—(UP)—The United States circuit court of appeals here handed down a decision today giving the government a sweeping victory in its case against Edward L. Doheny, oil millionaire.

Decision of the district court of Los Angeles ordering return of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve to the government was upheld.

At the same time, the court ordered reversed the award of the Los Angeles tribunal giving Doheny $11,786,928.31 as compensation for development of the oil reserves at Elk Hills and storage construction work at Pearl Harbor.

Decision of the government was rendered on two appeals from the verdict of the lower court.

The first, brought by Doheny, asked that the award of the Elk Hills reserve to the United States be set aside. This was denied.

The second appeal, entered by the government, asked that the eleven million dollar compensation award be nullified. The circuit court rendered an affirmative decision on this point.

Today's decision cancels all leases and contracts for government oil reserves in the territories affected, heretofore held by the Pan-American Petroleum Co. and the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co.

ROBERT SCOTT TO FACE TRIAL FOR MURDER

IN CONNECTION WITH KILLING OF JOSEPH MAURER, YOUNG DRUG CLERK

OCCURRED DURING A HOLDUP PERPETRATED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Robert Scott, reported under arrest in Merced, Calif., will be brought back here to face trial for murder in connection with the killing of Joseph Maurer, young drug clerk, during a holdup, Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman declared today.

Robert's brother, Russell, is now in the asylum for the criminal insane at Chester, Ill. He won his way into the asylum after a desperate fight during which he had several hairbreadth escapes from hanging, following his conviction for the killing of Maurer.

Russell insisted his brother did the actual killing, an he joined his parents in a nation-wide appeal for the return of Robert, believing the latter's surrender would stave off the death sentence.

According to word here, Robert conceived the daring idea of breaking into jail to frustrate police efforts to arrest him for murder. Shortly after the holdup here—April of 1924—Robert appeared in San Francisco. He broke into shop there, according to the story, and was captured. Robert confessed to the crime and was sentenced to San Quentin prison, under the name of John Redding. Last Christmas Robert became eligible for parole and the papers were being prepared when Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson of San Francisco received a tip that John Redding was in reality Robert Scott.

Matheson asked Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins of Chicago for photographs of Robert. According to word here, Matheson is positive that the prisoner is Robert Scott. State's Atty. Crowe today received a telegram from S. J. Smith, warden of San Quentin, stating that Scott is still being held.

Crowe said that he will secure extradition papers and send for Scott immediately.

REDDING, OR SCOTT, IS TO BE QUESTIONED

San Quentin, Calif., Jan. 5.—John Redding, convict identified as Robert B. Scott, wanted by Chicago authorities in connection with the murder of Joseph Maurer in 1924, was due to arrive at the prison today from the Bricburg road camp.

Redding, or Scott, will be subjected to further questioning, although so far his only reply to queries about the Chicago case has been: "You fellows are just wasting your time with me. I am not saying a thing."

A woman led to Redding's exposure as Scott, it was said, just as he was on the eve of being paroled from prison under a sentence imposed in San Francisco for a holdup less than a month after the Maurer case.

Authorities communicated with Chicago, secured Scott's photograph and Bertillon measurements and found them to check with prison records of Redding.

San Quentin, Calif., Jan. 5.—Obdurately silent and refusing to admit or deny his identity as Robert Scott, wanted in Chicago in connection with the murder of Joseph Maurer, John Redding was returned to the state prison here today.

Convicted as Redding for a San Francisco holdup in May, 1924, less than a month after the Maurer murder, the prisoner had been declared eligible for parole and would have been at liberty at Christmas had he found employment outside the prison. He has been working at a convict road camp.

Redding will be held at the prison here until the parole board acts on his case in a meeting at Folsom state prison Saturday. His identification as Scott is expected to be laid before the board with a request that he be paroled to Illinois authorities.

Chester, Ill., Jan. 5.—Russell Scott, convicted of murdering Joseph Maurer in a Chicago drug store, today shrugged his shoulders and refused to comment when told that his brother, Robert, had been found serving a sentence in the San Quentin, Calif., prison.

Robert Scott is wanted for the Maurer murder also. Hospital authorities informed him of the discovery of his brother and asked him if he wanted to make a statement. He shook his head and questioning was of no avail.

300 BANDITS IN CHINA IN DARING SILK ROBBERY

By ALFRED G. HICKS
United Press Staff Correspondent
Hong Kong, Jan. 5.—Three hundred bandits today by a daring trick perpetrated the biggest silk robbery in the history of South China when they raided Yungkee City and took $1,000,000 worth of silk.

After disarming troops in the city, they donned the soldiers' uniforms and deceived the volunteer police by declaring they were the "new garrison" for the place, in which they were able to take possession of thirty warehouses from which they removed the silk to launches and escaped.

SIX MILLION OF BRIDGE ESTATE GOES TO CHARITY

WILL OF THE LATE DR. NORMAN BRIDGE FILED IN CHICAGO

5 INSTITUTIONS ARE PRINCIPAL BENEFICIARIES TO THE FORTUNE

Chicago, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Approximately $6,000,000 of the estate of the late Dr. Norman Bridge will go to charity, it was revealed here today.

The will, filed for probate here, names five institutions as principal beneficiaries to the fortune. They are the University of Chicago; the University of Southern California; the Southwest Museum, Inc., of Los Angeles; the Barlow Sanitarium Association of Los Angeles, and LaVina, a sanitarium of Pasadena.

The will specifies that the money shall be used in the "interest of medical education and other medical work."

Ten other persons and institutions were given $10,000 each. Among these are the Chicago Home of Incurables; Northwestern University, and the University of California.

Dr. Bridge was 80 years old at the time of his death and had made a great fortune through early investments in western and Mexican oil interests. He was impelled by a tubercular tendency to move from Chicago where he was a leading physician to California, in 1892. It was there that he became an oil developer.

Mrs. Bridge was named executor of the will and is to enjoy the income from the estate until her death, when it will be divided as specified in the will.

PAID PENALTY OF BUTTERFLY LIFE

OLIVE LUNDQUIST, LA MOURE, N. D., TAKES STRYCHNINE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Jan. 5.—Olive Lundquist, 19, who came here from La Moure, N. D., a year ago, paid the penalty of the butterfly life today.

Strychnine ended her life while Elsie Wiggins, her roommate, tried frantically to save her.

Police are trying to learn the meaning of a note she left. It was addressed to Robert Dale, Minneapolis, and read:

"It will not be necessary for an officer to watch the apartment any longer, but I hope the spirit will haunt you as long as you live."

The girl registered at the rooming house October 31 as Mrs. Robert Dale. She left the apartment for about an hour last night, returned and took strychnine.

RUFUS E. BROWN, 'THREE FINGERED DAD,' ARRAIGNED IN COURT

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 5.—(UP)—Rufus E. Brown, negro, 63, known as "Three Fingered Dad," was arraigned in district court here today on two charges of kidnapping and criminal assault in connection with the attack upon Michael Lecher, 8, whom he locked in an abandoned buffet car.

He made no plea and the case was bound over to municipal court for trial in three weeks.

The Lecher boy was reported slowly recovering from the exposure he experienced while locked in the car for 86 hours.

PRESSURE IS APPLIED TO END COAL STRIKE

MINERS AND OPERATORS CON- FERRING IN NEW YORK

ORGANIZED WORKERS IN NEW YORK MAKE APPEAL TO END TROUBLE

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Jan. 5.—Pressure from all sides towards a speedy settlement of the anthracite coal strike was applied or invoked today as miners and operators' representatives gathered here to resume negotiations.

John Sullivan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, as spokesman for 750,000 organized workers in Greater New York and vicinity, has called upon Gov. Smith and Mayor Walker to exert influence toward ending the suspension.

A committee of three from the Scranton Ministerial Association will call upon John L. Lewis of the miners and it is believed urge him to allow the miners to return to work so that hardship and poverty in that city may be alleviated.

Dr. J. J. Curran of Wilkes Barre, who has been active in the settlement of all hard coal strikes since 1902 also is expected at Lewis' hotel.

Scores of telegrams and letters are pouring in upon Lewis and Major W. W. Inglis, head of the operators' committee, imploring an end to the suspension. But with all of these evidences of public desire to have the mines re-opened there has been no indication of deviation from the positions held by miners and operators. Each side feels that a concession must come from the other group.

Conferences will be held before noon today by both miners and operators when the full forces have returned from their homes following the recess taken last Thursday, just as a deadlock with consequent breaking off of negotiations seemed inevitable.

SEES NO CHANGE IN CONDITIONS

New York, Jan. 5.—"I see no change in the situation," was the statement of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, when he came to his headquarters in New York today for resumption of negotiations to end the strike of anthracite coal miners.

To this statement Rinaldo Cappellini, president of the Scranton district of the mine workers, and a leader in the present negotiations, added: "The miners have just begun to fight."

OSAGE MURDERS ARE INVESTIGATED

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 5.—(UP)—With prominent ranchmen, business men and officials among those subpoenaed, 140 witnesses were prepared to tell in federal district court what they know of the Osage murders.

At the same time, to all indications, the government was ready to swing its big stick for telltale testimony.

Deputy United States marshals were reported as having five prisoners—three federal Leavenworth prisoners and two Kansas state convicts—in their custody, and said to know much of the crimes committed against Osage wealth. Some 30 Indians are said to have been killed.

It is not probable that the Osage inquiry will get under way before Wednesday, the district attorney's office having some 50 federal cases to dispose of before the Indian investigation is taken up.

Pawhuska, Okla., Jan. 4.—The state moved today to solve the gruesome Osage Indian "murder ring" mystery when warrants charging murder were issued by the attorney general's office against four men.

W. K. Hale, wealthy Fairfax, Oklahoma ranch owner; Ernest Burkhardt, husband of a wealthy Osage Indian woman; Bert Lawson, now in Leavenworth prison, and M. A. Bloyed, former deputy sheriff, were charged with dynamiting the home of W. E. Smith in Fairfax March 10, 1923, which resulted in the deaths of four persons.

J. Berry King and Edwin Dabney, state assistant attorney generals, arrived in Pawhuska today and filed the complaints before Judge L. A. Justus of the county court.

The charges followed extensive investigation of several months on the part of state and federal operatives, seeking to solve the mystery of the much-probed "reign of terror" in the Osage country, between 1921 and 1924, which resulted in the deaths of 20 Indians and white men.

NORTHWEST FARM LAND MOVEMENT INCREASING IN 1926

St. Paul, Jan. 5.—(UP)—A material increase in northwest farm land movement for 1926 was predicted today by Immigration officials of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways.

Inquiries concerning farm lands have increased noticeably recently, according to H. W. Byerly, general immigration agent of the Northern Pacific, and A. J. Dickinson, passenger traffic manager of the Great Northern.

Homeseekers rates recently announced have aroused interest among experienced farmers in the east and south. Reasonable prices for farm lands in the northwest was given as the most likely reason for increasing interest.

"YOU CAN'T MONKEY WITH THE GOVERNMENT"

DICTATOR OF GREECE IS FIRST COUSIN OF MILL CITY CON- FECTIONER

ATHENS KONSTANTINOS PANGA- LOS TELLS MEREDITH ALL ABOUT IT

By D. D. MEREDITH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Minneapolis, Jan. 5.—"You can't monkey with the government."

That's the way Athens Konstantinos Pangalos feels about the dictatorship of Greece, even if the dictator is his first cousin. Hence a "to be continued" hesitancy about discussing Greek affairs.

In his confectionery at Twenty-seventh and Franklin, the first cousin of the new dictator is known as Thomas K. Pangalos—Thomas being an Americanization of Athens. His 26 years in America have brought him prosperity and a pretty Norwegian wife who can mix tasty malted milks with the best of 'em.

Thomas and his wife are proud of the family. Thomas went to school with Theodore, who has twice shaken Greek governments by courageously assuming supreme power. As premier of Greece for the past six months he popularized the dictatorship which he just assumed.

"Of political affairs I know nothing," said Thomas, 48 year old cousin of the somewhat younger dictator. "All I can say is that he was a very smart boy. I have not seen him for 30 years. He writes me of family affairs, but never mentions politics or the government. And when I write to him I say nothing of the government."

"You can't say things about the government over there like you do in this country. You just keep still and say nothing."

"It is dangerous to talk too much. Not knowing the political situation over there I might say the wrong thing and hurt my cousin. And he might have me bound up and taken back over there and you would never hear of me again. No, I don't talk."

Thomas might easily pass for the dictator. One might easily believe them to be twin brothers. Thomas is slightly larger than his cousin and his hair is sprinkled with gray. Pictures of the two give them an identical appearance, even to the last curl of the longest hair in each moustache.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The appropriation requested by President Coolidge to send a United States delegation to the preliminary League of Nations arms conference will be rushed through both houses of congress.

This assurance was given today both by proponents and opponents of the League, which indicated no obstacle would be placed in the path of America's participation in the preliminary Geneva meeting next month.

The appropriation of $50,000, which Mr. Coolidge requested must first be adopted by the house and there Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee announced it would be placed as an item in the deficiency appropriation bill this week.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee and leading critic of the League, indicated he would have no objection to the expenditure and the general impression now is that little extraordinary significance will be attached to the move which would link this country in the first big international undertaking of the League.

"It all depends upon the agenda, of course, as to whether or not I shall favor participation in the disarmament conference itself," Borah said.

Scarf Always Gay Fashion Favorite

Popular Accessory Works an Utter Transformation When Needed.

Scarves are no longer a fad, but an established fashion. They go on from one season to another, and are used ever and over more extensively.

The reason for this is that there are so many practical reasons to justify the scarf's existence, that the mere breath of fashion's whim has very little to do with it. Not always is it possible to have as many new gowns as one would like to have, then, what is more reassuring than many new ways of accenting those we have? At least one always can manage to give them colorful contrast, whatever the limitations of the purse. And the scarf works an utter transformation when used in this connection.

Throw a brightly decorative scarf over the shoulders of a somber dress, observes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, and it becomes positively gay, and the spirits gay with it! In the same way, if the dress donned to wear to dinner at night seems a bit uncomfortably dressy for the necessary errands downtown before going to dinner at the restaurant, simply choose the suitable scarf to go with it, and presto, the costume is at once properly subdued.

As a matter of fact scarfs seldom have been absent very long from the mode. In one version or another they have been worn throughout the ages, so much that they are associated inseparably with feminine grace and feminine poise. It has often been said that "the way a woman drapes a scarf about her shoulders is the surest test of her ability to wear clothes."

Of course, the real reason for the scarf's being is the infinite possibilities it affords for us to indulge the love for gay color. Another recommendation for it lies in its infinite versatility, and in wearing it. Like the evening wrap, it never looks quite the same, nor ever the same on two persons, because it is draped to suit the wearer. Many smart elderly women, desirous of covering the neckline, which has no scruples against giving age secrets away, like to wear a chiffon scarf draped loosely or tied tightly about the throat.

Infinite are the varieties of the scarf. There is the length of chiffon, with one end caught exquisitely to the shoulder; or free, with the arrangement left wholly to the wearer; tulle to be worn with the evening gown; the length of bizarre and colorful silk or printed crepe for sports and street suits; and the woolen scarf usually kept for actual sports or motoring.

Conventional Tailored Suit Is to Hold Favor

A certain sign that the conventional tailored suit will continue to be worn is the appearance of many novelties in dainty gumples, waistcoats, undersleeves and jabots. The waistcoats are made of silk, of linen or cloth, sometimes embroidered and fitted. They are made also like gumples of net with ribbon straps over the shoulder, and a "vest" of lace. A different sort of gumple is one that supplies a poke with standing collar or jabot of lace. The undersleeves are new this season, full "bishop" shape, of net and lace, gathered into a narrow band at the wrist. A few of these are shown with a little ribbon at the hand, tied around the wrist, or just a small bow at the back of the sleeve; new and very dainty.

Earrings Long, Larger;

Opal Among Favorites

Earrings are longer and larger than ever, if possible. The latest almost touch the shoulder. Exceptionally beautiful things are among the late exhibitions. In one pair a ring of white jade hangs from a string of brilliant and onyx. Topaz and brilliant are linked together in another charming example. Onyx and crystal is an ever-favorite combination, particularly with women who frequently wear black and white.

The newest and most fashionable of all things in jewelry is the opal. Superstition has evidently faded away or is powerless to cast it out of favor. Superb ornaments, brooches, pendants, bracelets and earrings of both oriental and Mexican opals shown by some jewelers are finding favor with ultra smart women.

Chic Imported Coat of Wine Red Needlepoint

Wine red needlepoint, richly trimmed with fox, makes up this imported model. The decorative pocket and sleeve stitching give a trim tailored effect to this handsome street wrap.

Proper Foundation for Dainty New Silhouette

In fashion as in everything else nothing can be perfect that is not based upon a perfect foundation. There may be a few women who still consider the shape and fit of their undergarments unimportant, but the number is lessening, for each season demonstrates the fact that it is not possible to be chic unless every single detail of the costume is selected with care and discrimination. Upon the type of undergarments worn beneath a frock often depends its success.

The new silhouette demands a certain support, and while the very young and very slim person still goes without a girdle or band that slightly confines the waist and hips, the majority of women have found a lightweight but firm model essential in obtaining the smooth svelte unbroken lines that are necessary if the new frocks are to look right.

Any extra bulk or fullness is eliminated in the new lingerie, while a single garment that takes the place of four others brings joy to the soul of the woman who has struggled so long with many shoulder straps. There are many variations of this new model, which combines girdle, brassiere, chemise and panties, but none more successful or charming than one which joins a brassiere of heavy real lace to a girdle of flowered silk. This is slightly boned, but the bones may be removed so that the garment may be laundered.

In lingerie the two-toned color effect is much in evidence and slim little shades of georgette or crepe de chine are as smart as they are practical.

With the tendency toward indicating a waistline and flares in outer garments, there is noticed a similar trend in lingerie, which in many instances has played godets set in below a waistline defined by lace or ribbons.

Feathers and Flowers Decorate Latest Fans

A new idea in fans has feathers and flowers combined in a fantastic manner. The upper part of a fan of tortoise shell frame is covered with fine rose-colored ostrich. Beneath these drooping plumes are applied small roses of pink and silver ribbon, with glistening silver centers. Another fan is formed of large ostrich plumes in shades of violet. The base is covered with silver-tipped silk violets.

A fan that differs from the conventional ostrich has a cluster of shaded plumes over one half and slender cut feathers, with curving ends, over the other half. The latest things in feather fans are quite large, but the extremely showy fans of very long willow plumes are not considered smart. The renewed popularity of lace, both thread and metal, applies to the fan. A tortoise shell frame is covered with black chantilly lace, studded with brilliants. Another, of mother of pearl, is covered with rose point. On one outer edge is a row of tiny pink silk roses. Designs are shown in fans of silk and gauze painted with figures and decorative scenes.

Millinery Modes

Millinery modes, according to advices from Paris, hold much of interest. There is unquestionably a concerted effort on the part of the best known modistes to replace the ubiquitous felt with hats of other materials, and in the collections of well known houses new models developed in velvets and other fabrics reveal an originality of conception and treatment, only achieved by deft and skillful handling of materials, and not possible when felt is the medium.

RICHARD DIX AND ESTHER RALSTON IN A SCENE FROM THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE 'WOMANHANDLED'

Fifteen Beauties With Dix in "Womanhandled"

Fifteen girls, selected from all Texas as the most beautiful in the South, play a troop of chorus girls in Richard Dix's new starring vehicle, "Womanhandled."

The girls, selected by Director Gregory La Cava from a list of more than five-hundred candidates, were chosen chiefly because of their beauty rather than because of their past stage or screen experience. Among them were the belles of Southland's society. Names familiar to every society editor in the Lone Star state.

Supporting the star in the production, which will be the feature at the Lyceum theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday are Esther Ralston, Margaret Morris, Edmund Breese and Ivan Simpson.

IMPROVING THE MOVIE PICTURES

ONCE in a while you hear some critic of the films saying that everybody is so tied up with the financial end of the pictures, the box office criterion, that no one has the heart, the purpose, the high minded resolve to strike out independently and improve them.

Charles Ray, a star of the film world, tried to inject "art" into the films and went bankrupt. His creditors have filed more than a dozen suits against him in Los Angeles courts. His involuntary bankruptcy petition listed liabilities of about a million dollars, with assets of less than $200,000.

In an interview with the United Press, at Hollywood, Ray said: "My desire to contribute something lasting to the motion picture profession broke me. I tried to produce my own pictures, and failed. It was poor business management. I attended to the acting, but my managers who handled the production and distribution, argued over petty things and we headed straight to bankruptcy."

"Life is just a series of experiences," he philosophized. "I went out and learned bitterly from experience. But I still think more of my career than money."

"I was not content to make good, light farces that would not last. That is why I sank on the financial scale. But I did it, and still am not unhappy. To achieve the things I wanted brought me happiness despite the fact that it brought me financial ruin, too. I didn't go into the business to make money alone. I sought merit. Now I know I will be able to do things on the silent stage that I would not have been able to do had I not tried the artistic."

Which shows that "art for art's sake" has a definite tenure of existence and can last but so long. The creditors of Ray were not imbued with any artistic spirit. They want their money for his experiments and so the involuntary bankruptcy followed.

But give Ray the credit for trying to do something, and although he failed, his spirit is unbroken.

UNCLE SAM AS A PRINTER

OF course, the stamped envelope subsidy is a convenience and a saving to many big concerns in the city, says the Staples World, but it is paternalistic and wrong. There is no more reason for the government furnishing people envelopes at less than cost than there is for it furnishing them shoes, millinery or dress goods on like terms.

The Staples World continues its arguments and states that a bill, which if enacted will be a step in the right direction of taking the government out of private business, has been introduced in the house by Representative Lozier of Missouri. It would repeal the postal laws that permit the postoffice department to print and sell to the public envelopes.

"The federal government now is in competition with virtually every job printer and country newspaper in the United States, for it has been printing envelopes and selling them below cost," says Mr. Lozier. "As a result, small newspapers are being driven out of business so far as the printing of envelopes is concerned."

"It is very well for a kind-hearted government to make the rate of postage so cheap that the privilege of the mails is denied nobody, but the matter of the government printing envelopes with return address thereon at a price below cost, while it is a convenience for some persons, it is an injustice to others."

"The price which Uncle Sam charges for the printing of stamped envelopes, an amount which is less than the actual cost of the work, naturally cannot be met by the local printer."

NATURE IN FICTION

AMERICAN realists these days are picturing actual farm life, for, according to the Bookman, "one of the most marked developments in American fiction of the past ten years has been the change in front of the American writer toward nature and the soil."

"Those who know nature are writing what they know. The result is not pretty. What they know is what Zola knew and what Thomas Hardy knows—that nature is not kind and sweet and sentimental, and that farm life is not an Arcadian idyl."

"Sometimes the fierce struggle against nature is a brutal picture and sometimes a tragic one, but always there is in it a fierce kind of splendor, as there must always be in the spectacle of so tiny a creature as man battling against the elements and in the end conquering them. It is a finer spectacle, more noble, more elevating, than all the specious, Pollyanna happiness which streams from the typewriter of the novelist who knows nothing of the truth. There is a fine available collection of American novels dealing with the struggle against nature—a finer collection perhaps than exists anywhere else in the world."

FAVOR MINISTER AS A LEGISLATOR

THE Cass Lake Times says that kingmakers are mentioning the name of Rev. W. E. Hammond of Walker as a possible candidate for the legislature from Cass county, and adds that Rev. Hammond is an able man of positive ideas and comes from a family who have fought bitterly against the abuses of the age.

The Walker Pilot in commenting on the notice says the idea is a surprise to Mr. Hammond and while urged by friends to take the matter seriously he had not done so at that time. The Pilot says his candidacy would be universally welcomed by the community adding that "he is a very able man and takes a lively interest in all public matters."

Rev. Hammond will be remembered by many people as having occupied the pulpit of the People's Congregational church in this city about 12 or 15 years ago and from here he went to Aitkin where he was pastor in one of their churches for many years.

"The Cheese Box"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

DAVID BRICE rode into Banning village, a gleam in his keen gray eyes that denoted hunger. Business had brought him into this charming New England town several times each year, but his memories had always been painful in the extreme, for there wasn't an inn or eating place that served a good honest meal.

"Chaff and twitter," David had always called the dainty little tearooms that were sprinkled over the countryside.

"I am hungry," said David to Doctor Bemish, his long-time friend, a bachelor, who boarded at Miss Prithier's house.

"I wish I could take you home to my boarding house," apologized the doctor, with embarrassment, "but my good landlady will not be bothered with what she calls 'transients.' It seems confoundingly inhospitable to let you go hungry like this. Why not drive back to New Haven—or, why not try Miss Tryon's tea shop—"

"Thanks," gloomed David, as he went on his way. He was sure he remembered the little shop. If he bought enough "chaff and twitter," perhaps he could satisfy his appetite. Even the absurd sign was gone, and instead there swung a round yellow-painted box, lettered in black, "The Cheese Box."

David's spirits rose. The tea woman had moved out and a man had moved in and opened an honest-to-goodness eating place.

A remarkably pretty girl was talking to two overgrown schoolboys at the next table.

"Aw, Miss Suzy, don't be mean," pleaded one of them. "You know you've got ham and egg sandwiches and lamb chops and minute steaks and French fried potatoes and everything—we're hungry and we didn't bring any lunches."

"It's a matter of principle, boys," said Miss Suzy Tryon, forgetting in her earnestness all about the nice looking stranger waiting to be served. "All those things on the menu are for my patrons, but I will positively refuse to serve anything to the Roland school boys, excepting cheese."

"But, why, Miss Suzy?" asked the smaller boy.

"You know, James," she said, and then discovering David, came apologizing to serve him. She took his order for lamb chops, creamed potatoes, a salad, and apricot tart with whipped cream and coffee, and the boys listened with hungry eyes. When she disappeared behind a blue screen, the oldest boy, Fred, rushed to the front and spoke through the door-crack to a group of half grown lads. "Nothin' but cheese for us," he said mournfully. "I'm going to have a pound of it and eat it all! Shucks!" He closed the door and tiptoed to his chair.

"What's up?" asked David pleasantly. "Why are you on the blacklist?"

Fred wriggled, but garrulous James leaped for an opportunity to inform. "You see we fellows all go to Roland's day school and our folk expect us to eat here at Miss Suzy's—we've always done it—then, some of the fellers, big ones like Fred, here—stole Miss Suzy's signboard away. It had a gay bandbox and that was the name of this place, see? 'N the fellers thought it would be funny to steal the sign and have it painted over yellow and call it the Cheese Box! So they did it!"

"And she won't give us anything but 'cheese.' Nothin' else—if we're starving," piped James woefully.

"And our folks think it's a joke on us," brayed Fred's deeper voice. David, looking at Suzy Tryon with interest in her firm decisive stand against the outlaw boys. As he ate the delicious meal which he suspected was cooked by Suzy herself, he wondered if the girl would not rather have her own dainty sign swinging over the door.

"I say, Fred," he said to the boy who was gloomily consuming a slice of cheese, with one eye on the door through which the proprietor had vanished. "Would you fellows like to please Miss Tryon and show her you're sorry you stole her sign?"

"We sure would," muttered Fred hopefully. "We must eat at noon!"

"Why don't you save up your pocket money, all put it together, take the sign down and have a painter make a lovely bandbox out of it. Then put it back and come and apologize to Miss Tryon. Then—I'm sure it will be all right."

The boys rushed from the place and David followed slowly.

The next time he came to Banning, David went straight to the Bandbox Tea shop, dainty and cool, and inviting. Miss Tryon was alone there, and again she came to serve him.

"The boys told me," she said with a lovely pink color in her cheeks, "all about what you advised them to do—and now we are good friends again, and that perfectly darling bandbox swings over my door again."

"It is pretty," admitted David, and he saw through Suzy's eyes that people liked those frivolous little names, and that it all made for gaiety and good humor and good digestion. At that moment two words passed out of David's vocabulary forever. Afterward, he might have just mentioned them to Suzy, his wife.

"Chaff and Twitter," he confessed. "What a cunning name for a tea shop," laughed Suzy.

The Grebe "Colortone"

hushes annoying sounds and allows notes of voice and instrument to reach you in full natural tones

It enables you to alter to your taste the quality or timbre of speech or music from high, thin pitch to low, deep, round tones. This receiver, unlike others, is not at the mercy of the loud speaker. The "Colortone" also helps to subdue to a great degree, the scratching, hissing, whistling sounds that are usually the bane of radio reception.

The "S's" and the "H's" are plainly audible; naturalness of sound replaces the artificiality which has heretofore interfered with radio enjoyment.

Do not miss a demonstration of this great Grebe innovation.

Eugenics Expert

Sir Francis Galton, in his passion for eugenics, gathered material for a beauty map of Great Britain, and walked the streets of many towns, carrying in his pocket an instrument that registered every woman he met as attractive, indifferent or repellent. As a result of his investigation he declared: "London ranks highest in female beauty and Aberdeen lowest."

Weighing the World

The mass of the world is determined by means of the torsion balance, an instrument for measuring very minute forces. By means of this instrument the attractive force of a large metal ball is accurately measured, and by comparing this force with the earth's attraction the mass of the earth may be ascertained.

Platinum

The geological survey says that most platinum is found native in placer deposits and in black sand. Some is found in ores in some of the mines in the yellow pine districts of Nevada, also in the Rambler mine in Wyoming. As much or more than 60 per cent of the platinum content is taken from the ore.

House Traveled Far

The first frame house erected in the city of Portland, Ore., was manufactured in the state of Maine, and taken in a ship, in pieces, around Cape Horn, and set up in Portland in 1847.

Quick Way to Stop Night Coughing

New Method Is Remarkably Effective

No need to put up with that distressing, weakening, sleep-robbing night cough another night. For there is a simple, but very effective treatment which, usually with a single dose, stops all irritation and lets you sleep soundly the whole night through.

This treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of night coughing. So the coughing stops quickly and you sleep all night undisturbed.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

READ THE WANT ADS DAILY

READ THE WANT ADS DAILY

"I'm too busy"

A friend of mine was worn out shopping around—trying to buy a particular something-or-other.

Hours had been spent, also strength and temper—and the desired articles had not been found.

I asked if she had read the advertisements to see where it could be found—before wasting hours in fruitless search.

The answer was "No, I never have time to read advertisements. I'm too busy."

Yet, in the first paper we picked up, the article she wanted was advertised; its price and merit told; also where to get it.

Reading advertisements is a time-saver. It's a good, safe investment in information concerning the best things the market offers you and where to get them.

Take time to read advertisements—and you'll save time and money in buying the kind of product you want

IRVING BERLIN, SONG WRITER, MARRIES HEIRESS

BERLIN WAS ONCE IZZY BALINE,
YOUNGEST OF A JEWISH
RABBI'S FLOCK

WEDDING TO ELLEN MACKAY
OCCURRED WITHOUT HER PARENTS' CONSENT

New York, Jan. 5.—(UP)—In one of the presidential suites of the liner Leviathan, Irving Berlin will take his bride, the former Ellen Mackay, to Europe.

Berlin will sail luxuriously and in company with one of the nation's wealthiest heiresses to a continent from which he came in poverty. It is a stretch of imagination to see in the successful song writer and publisher, whose annual income is estimated at $500,000, the one-time Izzie Baline, youngest of a Jewish Rabbi's eight children.

Wealth that is Berlin's came from the gray pavement of New York's East Side, in contrast to the fortune which some day may be his wife's, for John W. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph Co., has added many times to the original estate and has taken a high place in society and finance.

Berlin and Miss Mackay were married yesterday—without parental consent. The wedding was arranged by telephone office associates of the composer served as witnesses and a city clerk officiated. The tempo of the marriage was typical of "the strange translation of the noise and tumult of the largest city which Berlin has made in his melodies."

Clarence Mackay was stunned at the news of the marriage. Although rumors that his daughter was to wed the song writer had been current Mackay always had steadfastly insisted that they were without basis in fact. Curtly he issued a statement in which he said the ceremony was without his "knowledge or approval."

The bride's mother, now Mrs. Joseph A. Blake, declined to comment, but it is believed that she regarded the match with more favor than did her former husband, from whom she divorced many years ago.

The Berlins, radiantly happy, met newspapermen outside their home, but would not speak definitely of their honeymoon plans.

It was reported that Mrs. Berlin, a Catholic, would ask that her husband agree to a religious service before the couple sails Saturday on the Leviathan.

COMPOSER SUES A DULUTH FIRM

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 5.—(UP)—If Irving Berlin is not too busy honeymooning with his bride, the noted song writer may be interested in the January term of federal court which convenes January 12.

The Liberty Clothing Company, operators of Liberty hall, is being sued by Berlin for damages for alleged infringement of copyright on his song "All Alone."

This term of federal court will have a light calendar. There are 17 law and 18 equity cases. The criminal calendar will not be announced until the arrival of the district attorney.

EVELYN NESBIT IS FOUND NEAR DEATH

Chicago, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Evelyn Nesbit, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, was found near death in her apartment here today and was taken immediately to a hospital in an effort to combat the effects of poison, apparently self-administered.

Miss Nesbit, who had been dancing at a downtown cabaret, was found unconscious in her apartment today by Mrs. Duffy, a maid. Preliminary investigation indicated that she had taken eight ounces of lysol.

Dr. E. Brand was summoned and ordered her taken at once to a hospital where her condition was reported as "extremely serious."

Miss Nesbit's 17-year-old son, Russell, was in an adjoining apartment and accompanied her to the hospital. He said he could offer no explanation for his mother's apparent attempt at suicide.

After working on her for more than an hour, Doctor Brand said it might be possible to save Miss Nesbit's life.

"She is responding to treatment and we may yet be able to save her," the physician said.

Russell was detained for questioning concerning the circumstances surrounding his mother's attempt to end her life.

Miss Nesbit had just finished her Chicago engagement and was planning to take a trip to Miami, Fla.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, dancer and divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, swallowed poison here today while in a state of depression, but will recover, Dr. E. Thomas Brand announced after vigorous application of the stomach pump and other first aid action.

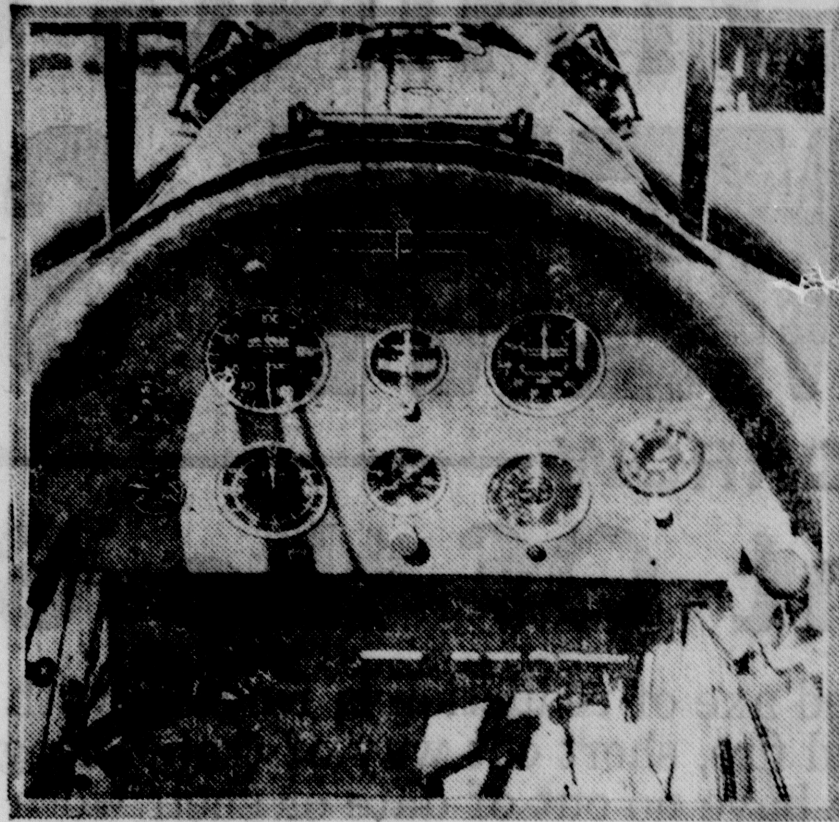

Evelyn Nesbit, who has been here for two weeks, took eight ounces of lysol as the climax to a lengthy "party," according to Miss Gusse Accoe, Evelyn's personal maid.

Gusse told Dr. Brand that Evelyn this morning had demanded some beer.

"A little later I found her on the floor screaming and had taken poison," Gusse told Dr. Brand.

Russell, 17 year old son of the dancer, accompanied his mother to the hospital. Police questioned him for a motive for the suicide attempt, but Russell could throw little light

Newly Designed Aeroplane Instrument Board Records Every Move, Makes Flying Fool-Proof

Morris M. Titterton, inventor of many pioneer aeroplane instruments, recently designed an instrument board which registers practically every quiver of a plane in flight. In the top row (left to right) are the oil pressure gauge, air speed indicator, bank and turn indicator by which the aviator knows when he is flying straight and when he is turning and which is very important, particularly in clouds and fog, and the rate-of-climb indicator. In the bottom row are the radiator thermometer or motometer, the tachometer showing the speed of the engine, the fuel lever gauge and the altimeter showing the height of the plane. The electric clock and control switch complete the dash. If a pilot knows his chart and watches his dash, flying with this equipment is simple and practically fool-proof.

on the matter. He said he believed his mother was depressed.

Gusse also said that depression caused the suicide attempt. Gusse said that Evelyn disappeared New Year's Eve and did not show up until Monday. Evelyn's nose was broken and the only explanation she gave was that she had attended a house party.

Evelyn regained consciousness shortly after noon today. She was very weak, and kept muttering the name "Alice." Doctors said they could not get her to identify "Alice."

Doctor Brand said there were indications that Evelyn had consumed much alcohol, and this he said, was in her favor as alcohol is a good counter-agent for the poison.

Miss Nesbit made a suicide attempt in October of 1921 in New York after she had failed in a tea room venture. She took poison, but soon recovered.

NERVOUSNESS FELT IN ALL THE RUMANIAN NATION

PARLIAMENT ACCEPTS CROWN
PRINCE CAROL'S RENUNCIATION

GIVES UP THRONE RIGHTS, AND PRINCE MICHAEL IS NOW
HEIR PRESUMPTIVE

Bucharest, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Nervousness was manifest throughout Rumania today following parliamentary acceptance of Crown Prince Carol's renunciation of throne rights, approval of Prince Michael as heir presumptive and designation of a regency in event of King Ferdinand's premature death.

Military precautions were taken everywhere to guard against possible demonstrations or riots in favor of Carol, especially as throngs last night showed their sympathy for him while military stood on guard during the legislative sessions.

The parliamentary debate was stormy. Princess Helen of Greece, Carol's wife, was granted the title of a Princess of Rumania and was allowed money and the right to live in the royal palace until Prince Mihai (Michael) becomes of age.

MYSTERY ENVELOPS THE RENUNCIATION

Milan, Jan. 5.—The mystery surrounding the renunciation of Rumanian throne rights by Crown Prince Carol grew deeper today when Carol's entourage informed the United Press that Carol himself was ignorant of the letter of abdication written to Bucharest and signed allegedly with Carol's name.

This revelation came only after the Bucharest house and senate had accepted the renunciation and also accepted the law naming Carol's son, Prince Mihai (Michael) as heir presumptive and providing for a regency in event of King Ferdinand's death.

The United Press informant said the letter of renunciation was written in Rumania while Carol was in Italy. Carol's intimates are insistent that the letter was a forgery to further the political ambitions of Rumanian statesmen.

Moscow, Jan. 5.—Political police of the Ukraine today arrested a group of alleged "white" conspirators supposed to have been seeking to prepare the ground in Crimea for a landing of "white" forces from Rumania.

Police Chief Batitzky asserted that the wounded plotters, mostly former officers of the Czarist army, said to be in the pay of General Wrangel and Grand Duke Nicholas, attempted to wreck trains on which Soviet officials travelled, and to kill foreign delegations visiting Russia.

N. Y. BOXING COMMISSION ASKS PHYSICAL EXAMINATION MADE

OR TO ENGAGE IN TEST BOUT AGAINST FIRST CLASS OPPONENT

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 5.—Georges Carpentier will not be allowed to take another big match in New York until he shows himself to be in the proper condition and worthy of a big purse, it was learned here today.

Before his license is renewed by the New York Boxing Commissioner, Carpentier who is to arrive here next week on his third (and last) invasion, will have to submit to a medical examination or he may be asked to engage in a test bout against a first class opponent.

Carpentier's plans are not known here. Tex Rickard said he had cabled him an offer to meet Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport light heavyweight contender, with the promise of a championship match against Paul Berlenbach if he defeated Delaney.

Rickard said he "reckoned that Georges could pick up a few more dollars" in this country but that the purse depended entirely upon the class of opponents he was willing to meet.

New York managers were protesting loudly today that Carpentier should not be allowed to come here again and dictate terms after the bad showing he had made the last time he was here against Tommy Gibbons and Gene Tunney. Several of them said they would protest to the commission if the Frenchman tried to get a championship bout against Berlenbach. They figure that Carpentier will be knocked out by any first class opponent and that he will seek one big shot for a large purse and then return home.

The commission, it was pointed out, cannot interfere in any way with Carpentier's plans until he applies for a renewal of his license, and even then it does not want to be placed in the position of making matches.

REVIEWING LAST YEAR'S FOOTBALL

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 5.—Dartmouth and Michigan, Red Grange and Oberlander made the 1925 football season the most popular and the most interesting in the history of the game.

Attendance records were shattered wherever there was a stadium large enough to provide a record and Columbus entertained the largest number of paid spectators when 83,000 sat in on the Ohio State-Illinois game in which the great Grange finished his college career.

The rise and fall of Grange was not only the big news event of the season but one of the most dramatic of all stories.

Facing the chance to make a half-million dollars by professional activities, Grange broke down after joining the Chicago Bears, a professional team.

He tried to do something that experienced trainers say never can be done. He tried to play four and five games a week and broke down so badly that he had to call a halt.

When he turned professional he was showered with more than $50,000 for various games and stunts and he was in a way to make a millionaire of himself as long as he could keep his hold on the public.

He had been playing only for a little over a week when the cheers turned into jeers. There was no college loyalty in the stands. When he couldn't deliver what the customers had put out their money to see, they gave him the Bronx cheer.

The 1925 season was one of great teams. Seldom are found in one season a pair of teams to compare to Michigan and Dartmouth and such a large number of good teams as Washington, Alabama, Tulane, Missouri, Northwestern and many others.

Critics who saw both teams in action were unwilling to venture an opinion upon what would happen if the Dartmouth and Michigan teams had played.

The nearest Fielding Yost, Michigan coach, came to an opinion was when he said:

"There is no play in football against which Michigan cannot find a defense."

This statement was significant in that no teams that tried it, could find a defense for the great forward passing combination of Oberlander to Tully with which Dartmouth swept the gridiron.

Dartmouth wasn't defeated or tied, but Michigan lost one game to Northwestern by a score of 3 to 2.

This defeat meant very little, however, as the field was ankle deep in mud and Northwestern got the chance for a field goal on a fumble.

Northwestern failed to make a first down and gained only 11 yards in the entire game.

The prominence played by the forward pass in winning a large number of important games started the conservatives complaining again and asking for a change in the rules.

One suggestion with merit was a proposal to make a ball free when it leaves the passer's hand and allow it to be recovered by either side if it happens to be knocked down.

Glenn Warner, Knute Rockne, Tad Jones, Fielding Yost and other leading coaches defend the open game and give it the credit for the surprising development of interest in the game.

After the death of Walter Camp it was thought that the vogue of picking All-American teams might pass but there were a greater number published than ever before.

Edward K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, condemned the practice because of the stress that it makes on individual players.

The boys who are named on any of the important teams, however, will not bother about official criticism as long as they win the honor—if any.

Increasing interest developed during the season in the professional game even before Red Grange left his "77" at Illinois and joined the Chicago Bears.

The games in New York were well patronized but with one season as a foundation it is impossible to say whether the crowds came out of curiosity or were really interested in the game.

TRY TO RALLY HARNESS GAME DEVOTEES AGAIN

Cleveland, O., Jan. 5.—(UP)—Grand circuit stewards from Keith tracks gathered here today to rally to the rescue of harness racing which wavered unsteadily through the 1925 season.

The schedule committee headed by Ed Tipton, Lexington, Ky., faces the prospects of filling a gap of six weeks in the schedule caused by the withdrawal of Aurora and Columbus. Last year's meeting at Aurora was a complete failure and North Randall was compelled to take over Columbus' schedule. No other tracks are expected to drop out and there is a possibility that Grand Rapids, Michigan, may be admitted.

Track veterans point to the growing popularity of the running race as a direct reason for the loss of interest in the harness game.

PLEASURE FIRST, AND TENNIS NEXT

PURPOSE OF MISS WILLS, NATIONAL TENNIS CHAMPION, SAILING FOR FRANCE

New York, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Pleasure first and tennis next is the purpose of Miss Wills, national tennis champion, in sailing tomorrow for France and England, the young California star said today.

"I am not in pursuit of any tennis championship and I certainly have no intention of challenging any players. If Mile. Lenglen should be playing in any tournaments in which I am playing, I shall be pleased to get that far," Miss Wills said.

With her mother, the young champion is going to Cannes from Paris, where she will start practicing for several of the Riviera tournaments. They intend to go to England in May, where Miss Wills will practice on the turf courts in preparation for the Wightman cup matches and the British championships at Wimbledon.

On her visit to England, she had difficulty with the turf courts and she wants to have plenty of time this year to get her game adjusted. She does not intend to return to the United States until July.

RAINBOWS TO MEET CROSBY HERE WEDNESDAY

GAME STARTS AT 8 O'CLOCK AT THE HIGH SCHOOL GYMNASIUM

CROSBY TO BRING WOOCK AND ITS OTHER STARS FOR GAME

The Brainerd Rainbows will meet the Crosby City basketball team at the high school gym tomorrow evening at 8 P. M.

Crosby will bring along such stars as Woock, coach of the Crosby high school, and also all-state center on the Carleton college team, Johnson, Burud and Darling are former high school stars and with this bunch will give the Rainbows a fast game. The game will be fast from start to finish and will be of a different brand of basketball than that which was witnessed at Crosby. With Rev. Bollens officiating you can be assured of a clean game.

The Brainerd team will have Beresford at center as he is back from the Christmas holidays and will prove a power of strength on both floor work and basket shooting.

The forward positions will be taken care of by Ziebell, Hagberg and Day, with Orth, Heikkinen and Dieckhaus at the guards.

There will be no high school game at Brainerd this week as the Brainerd high is playing at Little Falls, so Manager Peterson has arranged his schedule so the fans of Brainerd will be treated to a basketball game once a week.

The fans of Brainerd have shown their loyal support, that Manager Peterson is certain that he can book games with Duluth, Superior and Rochester which call for a heavy guarantee at Brainerd.

There will be only one game tomorrow night, game to be called at 8 o'clock with admission of twenty-five cents for adults and ten cents for children.

IRREGULAR TRADING

New York, Jan. 5.—(UP)—Irregularity characterized today's trading. Heavy profit taking went ahead among the leaders of the forward movement causing good sized recessions from their recent highs in the principal industrial issues. But the most significant factor in the day's events was the easement of call money to four per cent.

This definite proof of the plentiful supply of credit notwithstanding the rapid pace of industrial operations and the huge business turnover demonstrated that no logical basis existed for apprehension over the amount of funds tied up in the stock market.

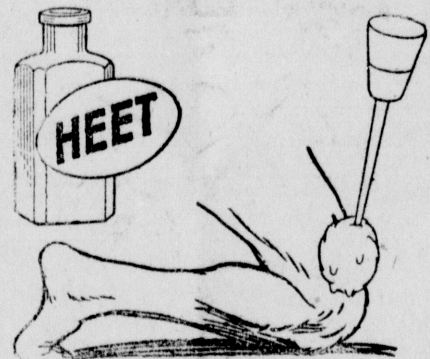

Assurance of this score prevented reactionary tendencies from gaining much headway. After prices had sold off from one to five points inactive stocks, important support was encountered and persistent professional efforts failed to force further liquidation.

The market closed lower.
